"Right, Where Really is the Western Sahara? Saharawi Writers' Strategies of Representation in the Digital Age."

Friday, March 7, 2014
Room 114, Arts and Science Building
4:00 - 5:30 pm

Reception immediately following the presentation.

Dorothy Odartey Wellington
Professor of Spanish Literature and Culture at the University of Guelph, Canada

Dr. Odartey Wellington has published primarily on African Literature written in Spanish and on African women's literature. Her lecture deals with the culture of Western Sahara, a former Spanish colony, now part of Morocco.

Sponsored by: The Department of Romance Languages and Literatures, The Afro-Romance Institute, the University Lectures Committee, and the Arts and Humanities Small Grants Program.